

Course Description for:

“The Truth About Mold V3.0”

This four hour course explores the impact of mold on the real estate industry. Students receive practical information on remediation, reducing liability, sampling and other testing kits, health effects of mold, and the differences between mold and other environmental red flags.

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

After successfully completing this topic, you will be able to describe the various factors that have increased the number of mold infestations in the United States, including the use of energy-efficient building practices, poor design and defects in construction materials, climate change, and the rise in the number of foreclosures. Several documented lawsuits are studied as well.
